DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lee et al., hereinafter Lee (U.S. Patent 5,157,573).

Lee discloses in figure 3 an ESD protection circuit comprising a pad 10 and chip(s), shown as logic devices at the left hand side of the figure; and a plurality of transistors 24, each connected between the pad and the chip(s), the transistors having a plurality of resistors 22 connected to an input terminal, the resistors are in parallel, and there are no resistors between the transistors and ground (Vss), to discharge static electricity through the transistors to ground and avoid reduction in gain (note that when there are no resistor between the source of a FET transistor and ground, the gain of the transistor would not be reduced).

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 2-5 are allowed.
4. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Art Unit: 2814

The primary reason for indication of allowability of claims 2-5 is the inclusion therein, of the limitations of a first insulating film on a transistor on a substrate, a hole in the insulating film to connect to an input terminal of the transistor; a buffer layer on the insulating film in the first contact hole; a second insulating film with a second hole to the buffer layer; and a pad on the second insulating film in the vicinity of the second contact hole for discharging static electricity from the pad and the transistor to ground.
